

Past, Present, Future

Tabitha is way ahead of her time
Dakota is behind the times
Just in time to meet in the middle as Tab and Coda

It gives a whole new meaning to “Right Person, Wrong Time”

STAGE MUSICAL OVERVIEW

Past, Present, Future is a musical adventure romance that follows Tabitha and Dakota, lonely musicians respectively from the 1st Century Middle East and 21st Century Midwest whose guitars carved from spacetime wood trap them in the 18th Century Romantic era. They form the duo “Tab and Coda” to survive the wrath of the Timeharmonic Orchestra until they can return to their home timeline, not without together becoming the right people at the wrong time. It explores bittersweet themes like mortality, an appreciation for wisdom, an everlasting search for freshness, and the value of nature in music.

WHY (THEN) NOW (LATER)?

Past, Present, Future speaks to many of our feelings of not fitting into your own era. Seeing a 1st-century woman find her soul in alternative hip-hop while a 21st-century newcomer finds peace in ancient hymns is meant to comfort the audience who feel like an outsider into seeking out musical communities. By blending ancient roots with future sounds, they prove that we can find our people and build a home, even when the timing feels completely wrong. Tabitha and Dakota are like us: they are the right people at the wrong times.

It also matters now when we are all out of sync with the world. We’re living in a hyper-digital age where algorithms dictate what we listen to and everything is moving too fast. The Timeharmonic Orchestra personifies that pressure to be perfect and efficient all the time. When Tab and Coda fight back with instruments made of wood and seeds, the musical is a gentle reminder to unplug, slow down, and remember the human soul behind the art.

Past, Present, Future is Winner meets Millennials are Killing Musicals meets

CAST OF CHARACTERS

TABITHA is a lyre maker from 1st Century Galilee who is way ahead of her time and in over her head. She seeks that “new sound.” Destiny, the Timepiper of the Future, gifts her American basswood which she uses to build her oud that sends her into the future. Tab finds home in alternative hip hop. As a singer, she is a breath of fresh air to what music could be.

DAKOTA is a guitar maker from 21st Century Free Soil, Michigan who is behind the times. They honor the “oldies.” Frailty, the Timepiper of the Past, gifts them Judean palm date seeds for their guitar, which sends them back in time. Kota finds home in psalmody. As a guitarist, they are an old soul showing what music once was, never staying up to date on the mainstream.

JESSE is the father of Tabitha. JESSICA is the mother of Dakota.

TIMEHARMONIC ORCHESTRA

ETERNITY LINGER is the omnipotent Spacetime Bandleader. They lead the Timepipers (the chorus of fate) to run each timeline smoothly but is on the verge of firing the Conductor. They often are addressed as madam or sir based on Ling Lun, the legendary founder of music in ancient China.

FRAILITY is the Timepiper of the Past, based on the Norse Norn, Urd. They navigate darkened times as a plover with metallic calls. They are the oldest of the three immortal shapeshifters. They like messing with Reality.

REALITY is the Timepiper of the Present, based on the Norse Norn, Skuld. They trek the rough terrains of spacetime as an upland sandpiper with ethereal whistles. They are the most uptight and suck up to Eternity.

DESTINY is the Timepiper of the Future, based on the Norse Norn, Verdandi. They go with the flow of time as a spotted sandpiper with high-pitched calls. A child, they are the youngest. Like Frailty, they enjoy pranking Reality.

CONDUCTOR is the literal music conductor of the production. They shape how time flows for the time travelers, based on their choice of instruments and musical phrases. Without them, every being (will) dies/died.

Past, Present, Future

MUSICAL NUMBERS

ACT I

1. Overture / Prologue: The Seeds of Fate Timeharmonic Orchestra
2. Born in the Wrong Generation Tabitha, Dakota, Jesse, Jessica, Ancient People, Modern People
3. The Right Person Tabitha, Dakota
4. The Wrong Time Tabitha, Dakota, Timepipers
5. Father is Long Gone, Mother Ain't Born Yet Tabitha, Dakota
6. Out of Tune Eternity, Timeharmonic Orchestra
7. Must Be Nice (Times Like These) Tabitha, Dakota, Past People
8. Band Together Tabitha, Dakota, Past People
9. Until the Beginning Tabitha, Dakota, Timepipers, People
10. Life is Short (You Must Be This Old to Die) Tabitha, Timepipers
11. Future Plans Tabitha, Dakota, Timeharmonic Orchestra
12. Right Person, Wrong Time Tabitha, Dakota

ACT II

13. Passing By, Running Behind Tabitha, Jessica, Modern People
14. Keep Tabs (on Your Heart) Dakota, Jesse, Ancient People
15. The Songs Linger (Long Enough) Timeharmonic Orchestra
16. Seconds Can't Count Tabitha, Dakota
17. Out of Wack Eternity, Conductor, Timeharmonic Orchestra, Tabitha, Dakota
18. Paradox Company
19. In Loving Destiny Tabitha, Dakota
20. From the End Dakota, Jessica, Tabitha
21. In Loving Destiny (Reprise) Company

★One or two songs will be a David Quang Pham signature science song teaching paleoethnobotany and archaeology.

PLOT SUMMARY

Trapped in the 18th-century Romantic era by guitars carved from spacetime wood, a 1st-century Galilean lyre maker and a lonely 21st-century Midwesterner must fuse ancient hymns with hip hop to survive a cosmic orchestra out to get them and find their way home.

Space and time are in harmony due to the everlasting performance of the Timeharmonic Orchestra, overseen by Eternity Linger and their Timepipers of the Past, Present, and Future named Frailty, Reality, and Destiny. They navigate space and time as birds who drop seeds to keep the timeline rooted (“Over/Prologue: The Seeds of Fate”).

In 1st Century Galilee, Tabitha is a lyre maker trying to revolutionize music that prioritizes individualism and a deep awe of nature over Enlightenment. In 21st Century Free Soil, Michigan, Dakota is a guitar maker who is deeply into the classics (“Born in the Wrong Generation”). Their parents see them as failures who will never find someone (“The Right Person”). Frailty and Destiny, annoyed by Reality’s insistent bossiness, decides to get back at Reality by playing Cupid with Tabitha and Dakota. Destiny grows a American basswood tree which Tabitha uses its wood to carve her oud. Meanwhile, Frailty offers Judean date palm seeds that Dakota implements into their guitar. With a strum, it sends them to the 18th Century (“The Wrong Time”). Tabitha and Dakota do not get along (“Father is Long Gone, Mother Ain’t Born Yet”).

Outside spacetime, Frailty and Destiny watch the timeline grow wonky. Reality scolds them and demands that they get Tabitha and Dakota home or else Eternity will fire the Conductor and restart the timeline (“Out of Tune”).

The Timepipers hop into the 18th Century to find Tabitha and Dakota trying to play music together to get home. It causes them to jump around years and decades which the Timepipers have trouble catching up musically (“Must Be Nice (Times Like These)”). Tabitha and Dakota’s antics catch the attention of the underground movement as they unintentionally kickstart the Romantic era. They form the duo, Tab and Coda (“Band Together”). They start to accept the trajectory they are on, which is none, as they fall for each other (“Until the Beginning”). The Timepipers reach Tabitha and sow seeds of doubt into her (“Life is Short (You Must Be This Old to Die)”). Tabitha wants a future together or technically the past, but Dakota once again does not know themselves. Eternity steps in and rattles the timeline, sending Tabitha and Dakota home (“Right Person, Wrong Time”).

Past, Present, Future

In the following act, Tabitha has the time of her life in 21st Century Galilee with alternative hip hop (“Passing By, Running Behind”). Meanwhile, Dakota is stuck in the 1st Century and meets Tabitha’s father. Dakota finds a pile of basswood and carves a guitar (“Keep Tabs (on Your Heart)”). Tabitha stumbles upon a music history museum where she finds this guitar with Tab and Coda’s melodic line carved in it. With the help of Dakota’s mother, who recognizes the handwriting, she steals the guitar (“The Songs Linger (Long Enough)”). They are stuck in a time limbo with nothing around, but they got a second chance together (“Seconds Count”).

Outside spacetime, Eternity finds the timeline is warped out of shape. They have enough of the chaos and must do a reboot. While firing the Conductor, Eternity finds out the Conductor is in cahoots with the lovebirds. Eternity takes the Conductor’s baton and stabs them with it. Eternity orders the Timepipers to kill the rest of the Timeharmonic Orchestra (“Out of Wack”).

Meanwhile, Tabitha and Dakota jump around time in a chaotic fashion. Tabitha reveals she knows of the Timepipers and their guitars transcend their powers. If they go back in time in “the outside world” and stop Eternity from killing the Conductor, they can save the timeline but ultimately be separated (“Paradox”). They go and save the Timeharmonic Orchestra. Their last performance is a dance with Eternity singing (“In Loving Destiny”).

Back in the 21st Century, Dakota and their mother visit the music museum near Galilee. They stare at a guitar with a Tab and Coda’s melodic line intently. The museum closes, not without the alarm blaring (“From the End”). Tabitha and Dakota reunite, this time in the Baroque period. Tabitha jokes: “If it’s not Baroque, don’t fix it.” Dakota emphasizes how much better it would be if the next vacation is in the Renaissance. The Timeharmonic Orchestra are once again in chaos (“In Loving Destiny (Reprise)”).

Past, Present, Future

SAMPLE SCENE

(Reality stares at the timeline as Frailty and Destiny giggle.)

REALITY: You two cannot be going around playing Cupid!!!

FRAILITY: Cupid won't knowth, they're on a journey. They've started something extraordinary.	DESTINY: They ain't gonna know, they're on vacay. I ship Tab and Coda.
--	--

REALITY: We've got to get Tabitha and Dakota back in their timelines, or it'll be our own pasts, presents, and futures on the line!

DESTINY: (acting cute) Eternity ain't gonna take it out on us...

FRAILITY: They will ensure the Conductor won't see tomorrow, or yesterday, or today.

(The Conductor stops conducting.)

REALITY: Keep conducting! You heard nothing.

DESTINY: What happens if that happens?

REALITY: The timeline will be erased, and Madam/Sir Eternity will take it to the Higher Ups to reorchestrate history.

FRAILITY: Gone will be my trees and dolls...

REALITY: My toy boats and model trains...

DESTINY: My followers on TikTok...

(Frailty and Reality stare down Destiny.)

DESTINY: It's what I named my cuckoo clock...

REALITY: The Higher Ups will not make a Tyrannosaurus Rex the same way.

FRAILITY: They could do without the feathers this time.

DESTINY: Dead-tex. They had feathers?!!! So demure...

REALITY: You were on TikTok cuckoo clock when you shoulda paid attention.