

THE BOOKWORMS

GOALS

THE BOOKWORMS is a fable that packs political themes around gentrification, censorship, and archival studies. I am looking to write alongside other writers and dramaturgs who are following the book censorship occurring in the United States.

My rewrite goals are to develop Bark's relationship to Turner and the Firebrat. Turner and the Firebrat are leaders in their own right. Turner leads the library to its preservation while the Firebrat leads the library to its destruction. Turner wants to save books while the Firebrat wants to burn books. Bark is a kid who idolizes both characters, even if Turner and the Firebrat contrast in principles. Bark wants the other bugs to be better than themselves. I hope to uncover links between Turner and the Firebrat that are akin to the connections between a rebel leader and a tyrant. Bark's allegiance starts with Turner and the Book Club then shifts to the Firebrat then returns to the Turner and the Book Club. To focus on these relationships during the intensive would help expand the second act, especially the third scene where Bark needs to earn Turner's forgiveness.
